Bittersweet Farm 5: Calling All Comets

Synopsis

With snow falling and the holiday season approaching, Lockie, Greer and Cam head to Florida to prepare for the winter show circuit, leaving Talia home. While receiving help at the farm from an unexpected source, Talia's on her own managing Victoria Rowe's serial emergencies. Her life takes a turn toward the Bows and Braids set as Tali suddenly has ponies and little girls to train. Can ponies help Tali take Bittersweet Farm to the next level of competition? Will they replace those people Tal misses so desperately?

Customer Reviews

This whole series is an interestingly developing story, particularly about the world of horse training and rider training. It is taking a little too long to get from one installment to the next, but this one was probably the best yet. Interesting characters, good side stories, good development of conflicts and solutions of some of them. A little too much repetition, but I am waiting for the next issue!

Barbara Morgenroth writes for all ages. I've always loved horses and reading. The thing that impresses me about this author is that she can keep her stories interesting without explicit sex or gore. I am not narrow-minded at all, however, one of the first things that I noticed about her writing is that a ten year-old could read them without getting an early education. They show examples of positive behavior and kindness and compassion for animals that everyone needs to understand.

I have enjoyed reading this series. I like the way it is written, and I like the story. I like the fact that one of the characters loves horses and loves riding, but does not want to show. And there are also characters who really enjoy showing. It is a nice balanced view that there can be more than one way to interact with horses.

Excellent writer. I didn't feel like I was reading a book for the younger generation. I have read many of her works and enjoyed every one.

As with all the other titles these books are perfect for all Equestrian's because it has the horse adventures and romance at the same time. It is the first series of books that have real details of what it is like to live as an equestrian and what horses and fellow equestrian's mean in our lives. I would recommend this series to any horse enthusiast.

As the holiday season approaches, so does the trip for the show season for Greer, Lockie, and Cam. Talia is left behind to manage Bittersweet Farm, and the fall-out from Victoria's scandalous new project. As I've come to expect from Ms. Morgenroth, the book is well written, and the story keeps evolving, leaving the reader anxious for the next installment in the series.

Hello, I absolutely loved this book and all the previous Bitter Sweet Farm series and I can't wait for number six. Barbara Morgenroth is a very talented writer and long, may she continue. I might add that although I am a mature lady, I can still relate to this type of book as I am horse mad and I love Lockie and his "silly filly".

Great Great series
