Detour: When You Feel Like You've Missed Something

Synopsis

When we came into this world, we were born with a purpose from God. We had something that we knew we were born for. But then, something happened along the way. We started to notice the place we were in no longer looked like the dream God put in our head. Whether you are a Christian or not, you have felt lost before. You have felt the tension that has occurred within your soul about where you are and where you know you should be. But there's hope. There's a journey God is taking you on that is necessary for you to be effective where you are going. In Detour: When You Feel Like You've Missed Something, Christian Santiago takes you on the journey to discovering why you are in the middle of the process rather than being active in the promise, what you should do in the meantime, and why you should never lose hope when nothing around you is changing. The purpose of this journey is much more than understanding where you are. It's about realizing that when God is silent, it's usually because He's working in the background.
