We love Little Golden Books in our home. They provide timeless stories, mostly sturdy hardcover compact books. We have I Love You, Daddy (Little Golden Book) and I just had to get this one to complete the pair. It's a great book that talks about different activities that kids share with their mothers: horsing around, baking, going to street fair, baseball game, reading. The book isn't about any particular family or have storyline. It's simply an appreciation of time spent with mom. The artwork is cartoon-like. It is simple but adorable. The pictures of the book are of diverse families which I really appreciate. My toddler loves the book as she recognizes that kinds of things we do together as mother and child (playing, cooking, visiting different places). Since we have the Daddy version, she's very fair and insists on reading one if we read the other.

What is adorable is my 2 1/2 year old grandson "reading" (babbling) to his Mommy. The I Love You Mommy is crystal clear. He is imitating preschool when the teacher reads the children stories. So cute. Priceless all from a little book. Ahhhh memories.....and we recorded it for future play backs when he is older.

Gift for my nephew. I absolutely love these Little Golden Books. Definitely will keep buying these books. Great books for children and bedtime stories.

Kids picked this book up for Mothers Day gift and they read it about 10 times so far. It's a basic, happy kids book.

Children are never too young for stories. Especially, good stories. I'm starting my great grandchildren now. One is 14 months old the other 4 months.

Sweet book. Shows pictures of different things Moms would take kids to during the day.

I like the book. The story and the illustrations were great. Worth the price.

These book series are worth it! Especially if your 1st or 2nd grader is a reader.
