Victoria Lisi has illustrated a dozen children's picture books and more than 200 book covers in a variety of genres: YA, Fantasy, New Age and Romance. In recent years she has shifted her focus to Fine Art and is now painting realistic animals, landscapes and portraits. She is a member of the Artist's Association of Northern Colorado and teaches painting and drawing at Aims Community College in Loveland, Colorado. She is also a contributing artist in North Light's Painter's Quick Reference: Birds & Butterflies (2008).

The quality of the portrait paintings was not what I expected.

Great painting book, well illustrated.

I really enjoyed this and offers great advice to artists. I would recommend. Great tips, always on hand! Awesome! Ss

My new favorite children's portrait book.... real substantive info and logical sequences.... I may not use everything in here... but she approaches all skin tones and skin and hair combos....

My teacher (a few years back) was the author/illustrator of this publication. She is a wonderful watercolorist as well. I am painting my grandkids and wanted to use her book for a guide.

Very good illustrations.

Very helpful book for a beginner or above for portrait painting. I learned spacing of features and how to mix colors.

This book has really enriched my talents that I never knew I had, that is according to my family and customers.
